GENERAL NEWS.

Cheer Up.

Special to the Gazette.

DODGE CITY, May 15. The hearts of our stock growers were gladdened to-day by a heavy four hours rain. This is the first rain we have had for nine months. Our stock growers were nearly desperate. The stock was suffering terribly for fresh grass and there was great danger of our magnificent ranges being destroyed. Such a drouth had not been experienced since 1863, when the Arkansas was nearly dry. About 10 o'clock it looked like rain, but our people had been so frequently deceived that they did not get out their umbrellas. At 12:15 a gentle shower came down which was succeeded by a deluge. For four hours the heavens seemed literally to open and pour forth the stores of water which had been gathered during the past nine months. The grass is beginning to start and everybody is jubilant. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Terrible if True.

CHICAGO, May 15. The Times this evening published a story from Leadville told by John Allendorff to a reporter in that city regarding the terrible massacre of the white prospectors on the Ute reservation. Allendorff says he left his home in Lyon county, Kansas, seven weeks ago with seventeen others on an equipped expedition in search of mineral, which they found on the head waters of the Gunnison river in rich placers, which yield from [illegible] to forty dollars per day. On May 3d, while the party were widely scattered, the Indians mounted, and 500 strong, galloped down upon the camp and, after massacreing the whole party, cut their bodies into pieces. Allendorff witnessed the affair from a mountain whither he had gone hunting. The Utes had carried off all the gold and the whole outfit. Allendorff escaped and walked for several days until he reached a settlement. He gives the following as the names of the murdered men: Charles and John Andrus, Ellis Marton, James Henderson, John and Isaac Ditmore, M. Flemming, Peter Amberg, Fred and Louis Snell, Ed. Mason, Phillip Jackson, Josiah Warner, Jesse, Jerry and Adam Homer, and Julius Terry.

Mr. Allendorf confesses that his story had been discredited by the settlers to whom he told it, and who attributed it to a disordered brain.

A telegram was received at Leadville yesterday reporting that a man coming from the reservation to Lake City reported a party of twenty-five prospectors corralled in the Gunnison and twelve killed. This is supposed to be Bradbury's party, which left Del Norte three weeks ago.

General McKenzie's column is on the way to the scene.

A letter from Saguache says the Utes are reported to have killed twelve miners forty miles west of that place and troops from Fort Garland are the way to that place. All these stories are subject to doubt and cannot be verified. It is believed the Indians are making preparations for the war path, and stirring news may be expected soon.

The Terrible Fire at Milton.

SUNBURY, PA., May 15. The scene at Milton this afternoon beggars description. Nothing remains except black and desolate ruins of the once prosperous town. The people spent last night in the lofts of the rail works and planing mill. The number of buildings destroyed is 666. Vaults and books of banks are uninjured. The people of the town are almost entirely destitute. Provisions have been pouring into the town from the surrounding country. One man burned has been identified as Mr. Angey, 85 years old. He was attempting to save the stable of the poor house. Mrs. Stoecker died during the night from fright. The fire originated from sparks from a saw-mill attached to the car works. The principal losses are as follows: Wm. Robert Tanner, $135,000; H. Schrater & Co., $75,000; Academy of Music, $30,000; car shop, $200,000, insurance, $70,000; Huff House, $35,000, insurance, $15,000, United States Hotel, $10,000; J. F. Granger & Son, clothiers, $20,000; P. Brown, butcher, $20,000, no insurance; ex Senator Banvard, residence, $10,000; Broadway House, $20,000; Cyrus Brown, druggist, $30,000; A. L. Wegner, $80,000, Swartz's marble yard, $15,000.

The churches destroyed are the Reformed, $18,000; Catholic $10,000; Baptist, $15,000; Methodist, $15,000; Evangelical Presbyterian, 10,000.

The companies lose as follows:

America, of Philadelphia	$75,000
Girard	6,000
Phoenix, of London	50,000
Lycoming	100,000
Fire Association, of Philadelphia	20,000
Farmers, of York	24,000
Franklin	50,000
North America	40,000
Etna	12,000
Two Danville companies	13,000

The aggregate losses are estimated at 1,600,000

HARRISBURG, PA., May 15.—The mayor has issued a second urgent appeal for speedy aid to the sufferers by the fire at Milton.

Political News.

OUTLOOK IN CALIFORNIA.

NEW YORK, May 15. The Herald interviewed Leland Stanford here yesterday. He replied to the question, "Is there any organized opposition to the third term candidacy of ex-President Grant?" None at all. The ex-president is very popular in California, and if he should be nominated he would get the whole republican vote. The Kearney people would divide in such a case, the democrats voting for their man for president, and the republicans for theirs; but the Kearney [illegible] had their day. They have no influence any longer. The democratic delegates will go to the Cincinnati convention uninstructed. I think Tilden is still the great favorite with the democrats of the Pacific coast, but a local pride will induce them to present the name of Field. Indeed I believe Field would be the strongest presidential candidate the democrats could select to secure the vote of California. He would make a better canvass than any other man they could put up.

The republicans are stronger on the Pacific coast than they were four years ago.

DENVER FOR FIELD.

DENVER, May 15. The Arapahoe democratic county convention to-day elected thirty delegates to the state convention. The resolutions endorsed Judge Field for president.

GRANT'S FIRST VICTORY.

A republican Del Norte special says the Rio Grande republican county convention to-day elected four delegates to the state convention instructed to work for the nomination of General Grant for president.

WYOMING REPUBLICAN DELEGATES.

LARAMIE CITY, May 15. The republican convention met here to-day and elected W. A. Carter and W. C. Brown delegates to the Chicago convention. One is for Blaine and the other for Grant. They are not instructed.

SENATOR CAMERON ADVISES GIVING UP GRANT.

CHICAGO, May 15. The Tribune Washington special says Senator Cameron is said to have written his son Don Cameron within a few days, urging him to take up Blaine on the ground that a third term is too unpopular to [illegible].

Washington News.

DAY OF ADJOURNING.

WASHINGTON, May 15. After a lively debate, the house passed a concurrent resolution to adjourn May 31. Although the house has adopted this resolution it is by no means certain that the session will terminate on that day for several potent influences which contributed to secure a majority vote for the proposition in the house of representatives will not be operative in the senate. The members of the latter body, besides being habitually more deliberative have no congressional renomination to look after at home, nor is the presiding officer, possessed of power and earnest desire to hasten an early adjournment for party ends, which have been so assiduously exerted by Speaker Randall. Moreover "Iron Clad" universally high tariff advocates in the senate are nothing like so numerous or powerful proportionally as the tariff men of the house, who to-day converted the adjournment question practically into a question of whether or not the house should be allowed an opportunity to consider a few proposed reductions in the tariff, and who cast a solid vote in favor of a hasty adjournment, rather than incur any risk of any legislation being enacted which might change the tariff in any one particular. The house resolution will doubtless be held back by the senate committee on appropriations for a while to await the further progress of the annual appropriation bills in the senate, but whenever reported to that body, it will unquestionably give rise to much fuller debate and meet with much more determined opposition than it encountered in the house, and each day that will elapse in the meantime is likely to diminish its chances of obtaining concurrence.

Wheat Crop for 1880.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Bulletin prints returns from all the chief wheat growing states in the country. Upon the whole, the acreage and present condition of the planting indicates that the crop of wheat will equal that of 1879. The chief exceptions to this rule are Iowa and Kansas, both large contributors to [illegible] crop. But so far as can be judged from the present indications the deficiency in those states are likely to be compensated by Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

Whittaker Perhaps Guilty.

WEST POINT, May 15. The expert Southworth testified in his report very circumstantially showing that the note of warning was written on the same paper as that on which Whittaker wrote to his mother, and in fact on part of the same sheet on which he had started to write. Southworth and every one of the five experts identified the writing of Whittaker.

Cadet Whitter was called. In reply to questions, he said he had heard before he came to the academy of the way in which the colored cadets were treated. The prospect was not encouraging, but he had in some respects been treated better than he expected. A copy of Lieutenant Flipper's book on the colored cadet at West Point was shown Whittaker. The book contained extracts from letters from Whittaker in which he spoke of his treatment as bully. Whittaker said the extract expressed his sentiments at that time. He thought some colored cadets had been treated worse than he. When the wrongs done him had been reported to the authorities they had been redressed. He had some suspicions of Cadets Blake and McDonald, because of their treatment of him. He had made Blake very angry by putting on his cap by accident a few days before. Answering a question, he said although this fight of Blake's would not move a sensible man to cut, and mutilate another, yet it might have have blinded him and prejudiced him to such such an act. He and McDonald had a [illegible] while they were plebes, and had not been friends since.

Whittaker was asked if the letter he held in his hand was his. Whittaker said he could tell when he received it, and reached out for it. The recorder again sharply asked if it was his writing, and received the same answer. Finally Mr. Knight, Whittaker's counsel, took the letter from the recorder and handed it to Whittaker, who read it aloud in a dramatic manner. It was a bitter denunciation of the perpetrators of the cowardly outrage on him, and referring to West Point in terms of reproach for allowing such things to be perpetrated. It was written to colored men in New York city. The recorder's action in the matter created an unfavorable impression and remarks. He complained of this to President Mordecai, who said a repetition of the same would cause an ejection from the room of those making them. Whittaker acknowledged the authorship of the letter and said he clung tenaciously to the utterances still. The recorder asked if the marks on his ears remain and he said they did, but were slight. In further cross examination he showed a slight discrepancy with former statements. He was closely questioned as to the handkerchief, his knife, his doors, pillows, etc. He answered all questions freely. He described the third cadet but said he had no suspicion who he was. He was taller than McDonald and smaller than Blake. The recorder asked how he could justify himself by bringing the names of McDonald and Blake into disrepute. Whittaker replied you asked me and I have a right to tell you whom I suspect. He had never mentioned them before and no one had suggested that he do it, not even his counsel. The recorder read the reports of the experts, both of whom fixed on the hand writing of Whittaker as the writer who wrote the note of warning. The report of the experts have borne heavily against Whittaker. Expert Southworth testified in his report very circumstantially, showing that the note of warning was written on the same paper.

Wool Market.

BOSTON, May 15. The wool market is unsettled, and hardly enough business doing to make prices. During the past week a few large lots were sold, but the prices were not made public. It would be difficult to say what round lots of Michigan, Ohio, or Pennsylvania would bring. Manufacturers generally are out of the market. The total sales for the week were only 515,600 pounds, of which 415,900 pounds were domestic, being the smallest for many years. The firmness of the English market makes the holders of foreign wool less disposed to urge sales. There is no movement as yet in new spring wool, very little having been received. The sales include Oregon at 37 and territory at 25 to 35.

Tirade Against Civil Service Reform.

NEW YORK, May 15. The New York Herald says since Secretary Sherman's visit to New York, it would appear there has been very urgent demand for assistant weigh masters in the custom house. Employes have had the misfortune to have uncles, aunts, cousins, &c., so seriously indisposed out west that they have been constrained from sense of duty to ask leave of absence. The article concludes that civil service reform is a fine thing in theory. In practice it looks like pretty much of a humbug.

Mexican Railway Companies.

BOSTON, May 15. At a meeting of the Sonora railroad management here yesterday, B. P. Cheney resigned the presidency of the company and Thomas Nickerson was elected his successor. M. L. Goodwin resigned the position of clerk and treasurer, and S. W. Reynolds was elected in his place. At a subsequent meeting of the Mexican Central Railroad company, Warren Sawyer resigned the position of president and Thomas Nickerson was elected to fill the vacancy.

Off for the Reservation.

CHICAGO, May 15. The Times says a Leadville company of one hundred men will be organized here Sunday to go to the Ute reservation. They will be thoroughly armed and well equipped for the summer. Major Kline, formerly of the Buck Tail regiment of Pennsylvania volunteers, will be the leader.

Forest Fires.

MILFORD, PA., May 15.—Eight thousand acres of wood land is burning. More houses are destroyed. This morning men were stationed along the line of the fire to prevent the advancing of the immense fires in Monroe county, New Jersey.

NEW YORK, May 15. The forest fires in Cumberland, Atlantic and Burlington counties, New Jersey, continue to burn freely. Other fires are subsiding for want of material.

California Agrarian Troubles.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—The Bulletin this evening publishes a copy of the written document which the settlers presented to Marshal Poole immediately after the shooting occurred, and it premises that the settlers are not able to perfect their equity so quickly as their opponents can complete the process for ejectment, and closes as follows: Three cases have been appealed to the United States supreme court, and we are determined not to submit to ejectments. The cases decided present the following facts. First, these lands were never granted to the Southern Pacific railroad company. Second we have certain equities that must be respected, and shall be respected. Third, the patents they hold to our lands were acquired by misrepresentation and fraud, and we, as American citizens, cannot and will not respect them without investigation by our government. Fourth, the Southern Pacific railroad company have not complied with their contract both with our people and with our government, and therefore for these several reasons we are in duty bound to ask you to desist by the authority of league.

The South Kicking.

NEW YORK, May 15.—A recent Vicksburg Herald says we deny most emphatically that the south has received anything like her proportion of aid from the national government. She has been asking for twelve years for aid to construct the railroad on the Southern Pacific. She has never got it, and she never will get it, while southern newspapers renounce every time the northern democratic convention resolve that they are opposed to giving it.

Kallochs Condemned.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15. The Baptist state convention at Sacramento passed a resolution expressing condemnation of the course of Revs. I. S. and I. M. Kalloch and giving notice that preliminary steps would be taken for a hearing between the aggrieved church and the Metropolitan church of which the Kallochs are pastors by a vote of 46 to 36 after a sharp debate.

Immigration and Its Dangers.

NEW YORK, May 15. More than a hundred thousand immigrants have landed at Castle Garden since January 1st. 60,000 arrived during April, and the present rate of arrivals is about 12,000 a week. Should the volume of the influx continue to increase during the summer months we may reasonably expect fully a half million immigrants will reach our shores this year. In Europe the vast exodus has caused much uneasiness and it is not to be looked upon with unmixed satisfaction by the people of this country. There is a well grounded fear that our friends are coming upon us much too fast for their good or ours.

Slave State Customs.

NEW CASTLE, DEL., May 15. Two white and five negroes were publicly whipped to-day. One colored burglar received forty very heavy lashes, which brought the blood freely. A boy aged ten years received five light lashes for larceny.

Germany Without Priests.

BERLIN, May 15.—A hundred parishes are without priests and no new ones can be nominated until the bishops are willing to submit to the government. It is therefore believed in government circles that the pope is inclined to give in, as he fears the power of papacy in Europe might be shaken by a longer delay to re-establish their power. The pope is said to be willing to make some sacrifices and also some important concessions in this policy. However, the pope will have resistance from the Jesuits.

REPUBLICAN CALL.

HEADQUARTERS REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE,
DENVER, Colorado, April 22, 1880.

At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, held at this place Thursday, April 22, it was ordered that a state republican convention be held on Tuesday, the 25th day of May, 1880, at ten a. m., at Denver, Colorado, for the purpose of choosing delegates to cast the vote of the state at the national republican convention, to meet in Chicago, June 3, 1880.

The republican committees of the various counties are therefore requested to make, as soon as practicable, provisions for the election of delegates to a republican state convention at the time and place above mentioned.

Upon the basis of representation as fixed by the committee, the counties of the state are entitled to representation in the state convention as follows:

Counties.	Delegates.	Counties.	Delegates

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

Notice is hereby given that a republican county convention will be held at Court House Hall, Colorado Springs, Colorado, on Saturday, May 22d, 1880,

at two o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the Republican State Convention, to be held at Denver, on the 25th day of May, 1880, for the purpose of electing delegates to the National Republican Convention, to be held at Chicago, on the 3d day of June, 1880; and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the convention.

The several precincts of the county will be entitled to send delegates as follows, to wit:

Precinct No. 1	1	delegate.
" " 2—2		"
" " 3—3		"
" " 4 2		"
" " 5—2		"
" " 6—18		"
" " 7—2		"
" " 8—2		"
" " 9—2		"
" " 10—2		"
" " 11—3		"
" " 12—2		"
" " 13—2		"
" " 14 2		"
" " 15—1		"

The County Central Committee suggests that the primaries for the purpose of electing delegates to the county convention be held at the usual voting places in the several precincts on Saturday, the 15th day of May at 3 o'clock p. m.

By order County Central committee.

WILLIS SWEET, Chairman.

ATTEND THE PRIMARY.

The republican voters of precinct number six will elect on Tuesday evening eighteen delegates to the county convention. If these eighteen delegates vote as a unit, they will practically control the convention. It is important that they represent the sentiment of our voters. They will do this if the republicans turn out and vote at the primary. The primary is the most important part of our election machinery and no republican with any preferences should fail to attend it.

The Denver News has got off the fence and declared for Judge Field for democratic candidate for president.

The effect of the democratic administration in Leadville is already apparent. Leadville script has gone down from 95 to 80 within thirty days.

Nebraska is a republican State. As a result Grant has ten delegates out of one hundred and twelve in the state according to yesterday's dispatches.

The Blaine men do not claim the entire delegation at Chicago, but they do demand that the strong Blaine sentiment of the state shall be represented there.

It is undeniable that the popular candidate of the republican masses is J. G. Blaine. He is the choice of more republican states than all the other candidates put together.

The Leadville Herald says that if the Grant party carries the state convention only Grant delegates will be sent to Chicago. This is uniting the Blaine-Washburne, Sherman forces all over the state against Grant. The question now is, shall Grant have the entire delegation?

The democratic papers are dodging all business on Sunday. The sentiment of the people of Leadville, when expressed, is to close down, under and decent.

Up to the present time reports have been received of the murdering of more than a hundred prospectors by the Utes, but do one actually knows that any one has been killed.

Next Wednesday will decide whether Grant can carry his own state. If he does it will not carry much moral weight. A candidate ought to have the solid support of his own state without making such a fight as Grant has.

Secretary Sherman in his speech before the New York Chamber of Commerce, declared in favor of allowing our shippers to buy English ships rather than have all our carrying trade done in ships owned abroad. This is hard common sense.

A writer in the Boston Advertiser advocates the adoption by the republican national convention of the democratic rule which requires a two-thirds vote. The certain democratic states cast 284 votes. New York and Pennsylvania by uniting with them, can dictate the nomination. The adoption of a two-thirds rule would prevent this.

By all shrewd politicians Senator Blaine is now considered to be practically out of the race for the presidency. Denver Republican.

This shows how desperate the Grant cause is, and how much Blaine's strength is increasing. This week Michigan, Nevada and West Virginia instructed for him, and Grant did not get a state.

The fact that the republican party will be placed on the defensive on the third term principle by the nomination of Grant is causing sober men to doubt the wisdom of his nomination. The republican party of the country in 1875 declared against a third term, and would be obliged to defend its consistency if Grant were nominated. To say that Grant will not serve three consecutive terms is only a quibble.

The precinct committee as will be seen by the notice published in our local columns has concluded to have the delegates selected by ballot. This is the only fair way. The old system of having delegates nominated indiscriminately in the caucus was just as bad as having them appointed by a committee. Last year the precinct committee arranged a plan like the one announced this year. It worked well and our voters knew what the preferences were of those they were voting for. It is the only way an intelligent vote can be given for county delegates. In the selection of delegates, voters want to know the preferences of the men they are voting for.

LITERARY NOTES.

Received from the Publishers and Condensed from Exchanges

Victor Hugo's new poem has been out only one week, and already four editions of it have been exhausted.

During the last forty years the Appletons have sold 40,000,000 of "Webster's Speller," or 1,000,000 a year.

The Detroit Post and Tribune has just published a book giving the life and public services of the late Senator Chandler.

The English Unitarians celebrated the Channing centenary by issuing an edition of 100,000 copies of all Channing's works at one shilling each.

Charles Scribner's sons have ready this week Marion Harland's bright book of "Loitering in Pleasant Parts," piquantly describing her travels in Europe.

Harper & Brother's have just published a book on short whist, giving the laws and regulations of short whist adopted by the Washington club of Paris. The book recommends double dummy.

The book on "The Independent Republican Movement," announced by Messrs. G. P. Putnam's Sons, will be a much more elaborate treatise than was at first supposed, and will make a volume of 160 pages.

Houghton, Osgood & Co., have been succeeded by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. J. R. Osgood retires and becomes the head of the firm of J. R. Osgood & Co., which will carry on the belletype business and also publish books.

Mr. John Richard Green having finished the enlargement of his "Short History of the English People," will, it is said, presently begin an elaborate history to fill the gap between Freeman's "Norman Conquest" and Froude.

A new work by Charles Darwin on "The Circumnutation of Plants" is announced. As the word is not found in either Webster or Worcester, we may explain that it means the following of the sun's apparent motion by certain plants.

Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co., have all but ready a new book, "Very Genteel," by the author of "Mrs. Jerningham's Journal," and have also made arrangements for the publication of new works by W. H. G. Kington and Jules Verne.

Messrs. Porter & Coates have just received a letter from the publishers of the French edition, the Comte de Paris' "History of the Civil War in America," stating that the fifth volume is now in press. The third volume of the American edition will contain the fifth and sixth volumes of the French, and Messrs. Porter & Coates hope to have this third volume ready before the end of the present year.

During this month, Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons will issue the "Poetical Works of R. H. Stoddard," with a portrait from a recent photograph engraved by Kruell. A pleasant adjunct of the publication will be a paper in the June Scribner's on Stoddard and his poetry, by his friend, Mr. E. C. Stedman.

Porter & Coates have a large number of works in preparation to be published during the coming season, prominent among which are Dunglison's "Physiology," Miss Scull's "Grecian Mythology," and an illustrated "Children's Bible Stories." They intend adding new and standard volumes to their well known popular lamos.

Three tiny books, almost small enough to go into a vest pocket, by the late Francis Ridley Havergal, are published in an attractive form by Messrs. Anson D. F. Randolph & Co. They are entitled "Little Pillows," "Morning Bells" and "Morning Stars," and were intended by the author for the use of boys and girls, each book containing thirty-one Bible texts, with a brief, plain commentary, or one for each day of the month.

Messrs. Houghton, Osgood & Co. will publish in a few days "Ballads and Lyrics," selected by Henry Cabot Lodge, one of the editors of the International Review. It will be a book of nearly 400 pages, containing about 150 of the choicest ballads and lyrics in English literature. Primarily designed for schools, it is likely to be a useful help in the study of this kind of literature and also interesting to the general reader.

Messrs. John Wiley & Sons have now ready the promised cheap edition of four volumes, at $10, of Ruskin's "Modern Painters" complete with all the plates and wood engravings. In the fine subscription edition of his early works, "Modern Painters" was completed some time since, the first volume of "The Stories of Venice," already out, will be followed by the second and third volumes this month, and "The Seven Lamps of Architecture," completing the set will follow shortly.

At Pesth has just appeared the first volume of the Memoirs of Kossuth, covering all of his American tour and his triumphal passage through the United States. It will be entertaining to know what he thinks of us now, after the lapse of nearly thirty years. He landed in New York December 5, 1851, and a fortnight after his arrival came the news of Louis Napoleon's coup d' etat, which was a coup de grace for Kossuth's agitation, and made his memorable efforts here of no avail.

Mr. Eugene Schuyler writes from Rome that he has received proposals from Messrs. Joseph Seligman & Company, the well-known publishers at Stockholm, Sweden, for permission to translate and publish his life of Peter the Great, now running in Scribner's Monthly, in the Swedish language, and from the house of Schmitzdorff & Co., St. Petersburg, for permission to publish it in the Russian language. It is probable that, on its completion in Scribner, the work will be published simultaneously in at least five countries, and perhaps more.

Mr. William Cushing has been at work for nearly two years upon a biographical dictionary to be called "The Century of Authors," and containing a list of the full names of all persons entitled to a place in a literary catalogue during the past one hundred years, 1780–1880. It will give the times and places of birth, education and death, the principal positions held and the place of residence of each, together with the subject, time and place of his or her leading or characteristic publication. It is intended to be exhaustive, so far as this country is concerned, and less complete in regard to the British Empire. The most important authors only of the rest of the world will be noticed. It will include living persons and upwards of 50,000 names will appear, with a fuller list of pseudonyms than has heretofore been published. Mr. Cushing is preparing the compilation in Harvard College Library where he may be addressed. He hopes to begin the publication early next autumn.

The Dark Horse.

No eastern man will be nominated by the convention, and there is only one western man who is a dark horse Washburne. The Grant strength will swing to him if there is a break, and when the first starts all the rest will follow. At present the man who has the best prospects of getting the Chicago nomination is Elihu B. Washburne, of Illinois. Denver Tribune.

A Square Question.

Another square question for the News: Did the twenty three democratic senators, out of the thirty-one voting, who said aye when the Ute bill passed, come from New England or from the south? Denver Times.

Blaine's Strength in Pennsylvania.

The number of Blaine men in the Pennsylvania delegation is now put as high as twenty-five by so eminent an authority as the Hon. Galusha A. Grow. He makes that estimate to "Gath," of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Register-Call

Washburne Sentiment in Denver.

The Washburne sentiment is growing rapidly in Denver, and the time-servers are beginning to desert Grant. Blaine stock is steady, and Sherman has some some support. Denver Tribune.

A Voice From San Juan.

Either Blaine, Washburne, or Edmunds will do. Grant never. The Southwest.

M. Grevy and [illegible]

M. Bonnat, the celebrated [illegible] of M.M. Thiers and Victor [illegible] will exhibit in the Paris salon this year one of Mr. Grevy also. The artist proceeded to do the work at the Elysee, as he had done at the Place St. George for M. Thiers, but M. Grevy declined the offer, saying that at the palace the painter would be constantly disturbed by Mme. and Mlle. Grevy, anxious to see the work and suggest modifications. He consequently decided upon sitting at the artist's studio in the Palace Vertimille. M. Thiers devoted only eleven sittings for his portrait, but M. Grevy has granted seventeen to M. Bonnat. The last two were specially long, they lasted from eight till half past eleven, as the artist was not desirous of applying for any delay. There has been a notable difference in M. Thiers and M. Grevy's modes of sitting. Being a meditional, the former was very eager at the beginning; but at the end of the first hour his enthusiasm has cooled down, and before the second hour was over he was asleep. M. Grevy, however, is represented as having been patience itself. "I am your object, place me in any position you like," were his words to Bonnat. "Can I talk?" M. Thiers used to ask when he was not asleep, and in speaking he constantly shifted his position. M. Grevy abstained from conversation, excepting when addressed by M. Bonnat, and never altered his position. The new painting will represent the president standing, bareheaded, his right hand resting on two books placed on a table, the left hand hanging down. The portrait is larger than life, but seen at the Salon, it will appear exactly life-size. Its event is much looked for.

What Treason is.

To disobey the instructions of a packed state convention and vote in accordance with the wishes of the people of your district is, according to the Grant vocabulary, "treason." Denver Times.

Colorado for Judge Field.

Judge Field will get Colorado's delegation in the national democratic convention; but Tilden will be nominated all the same. Denver Times.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

There are nineteen Unitarians in the new house of commons; there were fifteen in the last.

"Our church," says a Spaniard, "is the cafe, and our cathedral the plaza de toros."

The Salvation army has gained more recruits in Philadelphia than in New York.

The Methodists have forty colleges and three theological seminaries in this country.

Dr. Tyng, Jr., finds 2,300 names on the roll of communicants of the Church of the Holy Trinity.

The Viceroy of Egypt has given property worth $40,000 to the mission of United States Presbyterians.

The Winebrennarians, or "Church of God," an Anabaptist sect founded fifty years ago, have divided on the subject of secret societies.

The Messenger, the Reformed church organ, attacked Lord Beaconsfield for paying an official visit to the queen on Sunday.

Sadlier's Catholic Directory gives the number of Roman Catholics in the United States as 6,143,222, and in that part of America north of the United States as 1,899,000.

A census of the Society of Friends shows that it has about 88,000 members, of whom 66,860 are in the United States and Canada, 14,726 in England, 3,948 in Scotland, and 3,500 in other countries.

The Rev. J. Roy of the French Episcopal Church, Montreal, was pelted with rotten eggs recently by some boys while preaching one of a course of controversial sermons.

The formation of a new society among the orthodox Friends is mooted at Philadelphia, to be made up of persons who have been excluded from the other societies for causes, such as marrying out of meeting, which are not immoral.

The organ question still continues to excite the indignation of the stanch Presbyterians of Canada. The congregation at Pembroke, Ont., having decided in favor of an organ by a majority of twenty three, some of the members have in consequence declared that they will "never, never, never enter the kirk again."

A new parsonage is to be built for the old Moravian church at New Dorp, S. I., in the cemetary in which Commodore Vanderbilt was buried. Mr. William H. Vanderbilt, previous to his departure for Europe, sent a check for $5000 to the church trustees to help on the building fund.

Edward Kimball, the church debt extinguisher, says that the three great financial calamities of a church are: First, a fund for the support of preaching; so that the people need not pay. Second, one or two rich men, on whom everybody leans, and whose property the church feels at liberty to appropriate. Third, a debt.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association of New York is six years old, numbers in good standing 600 active and 500 associate members, has commodious quarters in a fashionable locality, well appointed rooms for meeting, conversation and light games, a gradually increasing library, a cosy reading room, a gymnasium and bowling alley and $5000 cash assets.

During the last four years of the Methodist church 717 preachers and 119,000 members have been added to the denomination; 512 preachers and 78,500 members have died, and there are 16,000 churches in the United States, with property valued at $80,000,000 and a total debt of $7,000,000. During the quadrenium $95,000 of the book concern debt has been paid and $3,415,000 worth of literature published.

Rev. W. H. Channing of England, nephew of Dr. Channing, has been saying from the pulpit in St. Louis some things which his audience little relished. He deplored the American thirst for sudden gain; he regretted the superabundance of wit and humor in American literature and in American newspapers; he mourned the snobbishness and exclusiveness to be found

A Most Magnificent Book

The purchase by Mr. Jay Gould of a priceless collection filled with rare and richly illustrated books has given a lively impulse to the general interest in the luxuries of literature. Millionaires who know the value of such things will thank us for the information that Bouton, the importer and publisher at No. 706 Broadway, has in his possession and offers for sale at the really small price of $7,500 a magnificent and unique copy of Shakespeare, probably the finest and most elaborately illustrated that has ever been seen. The basis of the work is the celebrated "Boydell edition," in large type, by Bulmer & Co., which was published in nine volumes folio, from the original one hundred sheet numbers issued in 1802. Mr. Bouton's copy, bound from the original parts, uncut, in half red morocco, had been extended to thirty-five volumes (a volume being devoted to each play) by the addition of 4,400 plates, consisting of views, portraits, costumes, original drawings in pencil, sepia and water-colors, with many of considerable value, notably a selection by artists of the famous London sketching club—Chalon, Stump, Harding, etc. The plates comprise all the regular series of illustrations, to which are added an immense assemblage of engravings of the choicest kind. Nearly one-third of the plates are in brilliant-proof condition; all the large folding plates, of which there is a great number, are mounted on linen and neatly guarded. Extra titles have been printed and a charming series of proof vignette illustrations mounted thereon, the inlaying by George Trent.

This copy of the famous Boydell Shakespeare was made by an enthusiastic book-collector during some ten years of his assiduous labor spent in gathering together illustrations of Shakesperian subjects. The inserted drawings and illustrations it is said cost their owner $18,000. This same gentleman, whose collection is now dispersed, had a passion for illustrating rare and costly editions, and this copy of Shakespeare was his principal achievement. His copy of Irving's "Life of Washington," in which were inserted more than a hundred interesting autograph letters, will be remembered by book collectors as a priceless contribution to Americana, which is now owned by a lady in San Francisco. Boydell's Shakespeare is a work which was the result of twenty years of labor and cost its projector a large fortune. He was an engraver and has been called "the Father of Engraving in England." He was filled with a patriotic desire to advance the fine arts in his native country and succeeded in making himself rich and famous and in substituting native art work for the importations from the continent. In 1875 he commenced his enterprise of the "Shakspearian Gallery." At a dinner with Sir Joshua Reynolds, Benjamin West, Fuseli and others, he conceived the plan of the Shakespearian Gallery. At this time he was alderman of London, a position which he held continuously from 1776 to the time of his death, except the two years in which he was high sheriff and lord mayor. He proposed to offer the prize of a guinea for any drawing of merit and 100 guineas each for those that were accepted by a committee of five of which he was himself a member. Sir Joshua Reynolds, who was president of the Royal Academy, opposed the scheme of a Shakespearian Gallery as impracticable, but Boydell was bent on the project, and considering Reynolds' co-operation essential sent him £500 with the request that he should paint two pictures for the proposed gallery on his own terms. The result of his enthusiasm and devotion was that thirty-two painters, two sculptors and thirty-three engravers were employed to produce the gallery and the noble copies of it in book form.

The paintings were generally life size and were contributed by the most famous artists at the close of the eighteenth century. The engravings were, as a rule, 26 by 22 inches and were published at two guineas for each print, a price which was not reduced during Boydell's life, and which has at times been four times this sum. In 1804 the work was completed, but as the result Boydell found himself bankrupted. The expense had been far in excess of his expectations, and, though his patronage had been liberal, he had spent his money so freely on his great conception that he became hopelessly embarrassed. In this emergency he petitioned Parliament for permission to dispose of the Shakespearian Gallery by lottery. This favor, for the only time in English history, was granted and the collection of pictures thus became dispersed, though not till after his death. Only one of these original pictures is known to be in this country. "King Lear in the Storm," by Benjamin West, now in the collection of the Boston Athenæum.—N. Y. World.

Loris Melikoff.

Loris Melikoff, in other words a nobleman from Lori, has a hard task set him. But unless he is falsely estimated he is the only man in Russia equal to the occasion. A Russian proverb says that an Armenian is cleverer, sharper than ten Jews, and that one Jew is equal to ten Christians. And those who know him say that Count Loris Melikoff is the cleverest Armenian living. It is certain that in the eyes of the people he is called upon to govern he is at once feared and respected. He is not a wooden-headed brute like Gourko, nor merely a strict soldier like Todleben, whose reign of terror in Odessa will be written in letters of blood in Russian history; but a keen, sagacious man, liberally inclined and with plenty of common sense. During his rule at Charkow Nihilism disappeared from his province, owing to the wise measures he adopted. One incident in his career there is worth noticing, as giving a strong proof of his tact. While taking a walk late one evening he was rudely jostled by a student, who was strongly suspected of being chief of the Nihilists in Charkow. The general stopped the young man and asked him if he knew what he was doing. The student replied that he only knew that he was drunk as he could be. The general reprimanded him, warning him to be careful in the future, and so dismissed him. Shortly afterward the rector of the university heard the story, and thinking to curry favor in high quarters expelled the student in disgrace, and then hastened to Loris Melikoff to receive his reward. He got it, too, but not as he expected, for the general said: "Now you have chosen to interest yourself in my affairs, so I will do the same by you." He then dismissed the rector from his position, ordered that the student should be again reinstated, and the police now looked on as a hero in the eyes of the most dangerous part of the population, the students. Henceforth they regarded him as a friend, not as an oppressor.—Daily Advertiser.

A Great Daily.

As people take up one of the great New York dailies—the Herald, for example—very few realize what it takes each day in the week to put that paper before the public. A late issue of that mammoth newspaper says of itself: "With a computed daily circulation of 130,000 copies—it may be a few thousand more—it requires 40,500 pounds, or 20¼ tons of paper; 336 metal casts of Herald pages weighing 8 tons of metal; 3,519,000 pieces of type, or 1,173,300 ems composition to furnish the bare material. Two large melting furnaces with double stereotyping machinery and seven perfecting double presses dispose of this material, 96 page plates per hour being put forth from the stereotype department, and 2,338 perfect eight page sheets, some of them cut, pasted and folded, being printed every minute by the presses. To take the written copy for this paper, set it up, print it and deliver it to the mails and buyers requires the labor of 150 compositors, proofreaders and copy-holders, 25 stereotypers, 65 pressmen, engineers, firemen, machinists and paper wetters, and 30 distributors, folders and wrappers."

Matrimonial Generalship.

The connubial management of American mothers is said to be more skilful than that of the practiced dames of the old world. The following story tends to strengthen the boast: An elder daughter had sailed from New York with a party of friends, made the grand tour of the continent and finally settled down in Paris for a few months of rest and recreation. In that gay capital she had many suitors, two of whom were conspicuously eligible. They were so evenly matched in every respect that the young lady, feeling that she could be perfectly happy with either were t'other away, wrote to her mamma that she was in the famous dilemma of the mule squall, placed between two equally attractive bundles of fodder. Mamma cabled her instructions with Cæsarean brevity and Napoleonic promptness: "I sail to morrow. Hold both till I come." Sequel: Not long after mamma attended the wedding of her two daughters on the same morning at the American chapel. She and her daughters still "hold both."—New Orleans Picayune.

Literary Weakness

Victor Hugo never could abide Goethe. Good reason why. The great German said of "Notre Dame" that it was a nice enough story, but villainously valueless from a historical point of view.

"Goethe?" said Hugo scornfully, when his name was mentioned once. "Goethe? Who is Goethe? What did he ever write? What does he amount to? The only thing he ever wrote that is at all passable is 'The Robbers.'"

"Pardon, me, master," observes one of Hugo's disciples; "but 'The Robbers' is by Schiller."

"And that is Schiller's!" concluded Hugo, in triumph.—Paris Wit.

What Virtuous Man has to Contend With

The gentleman who had been off for a fishing excursion and sent a paragraph to the local paper saying that "Mr. Jones has sent home a fine mess of 'speckled beauties,'" could not account for the warm reception from his wife, until he read that "Mr. Jones had been fined and sent home for a mess with some freckled beauties," and then he went for the newspaper man with a rod.—Baton Commercial.

Recitation Room Wit From College Papers.

Sir Thomas More was chancellor of Henry VII. When did the latter reign?

About the Time of More, I should judge.

Juvenal says that two heads are better than one; please illustrate.

Well, (after profound meditation) take a barrel, for instance.

How might Robert have made William the Conqueror lawful heir to the throne?

By marrying his mother.

Turning now to the Salic Code, what what were the grounds on which the French resisted Edward III.'s claims to the French crown?

Because his mother was a (hastily) that is, because Isabella wasn't a ma (triumphantly) because a woman's son couldn't be a male heir to the French crown.

This is a beautiful line, gentlemen, where the poet speaks of

The balm of childhood, bringing sweet repose.

Can any of you tell me what he means by this exquisite figure?

Well, I should say, sir, that he meant soothing syrup.

What classes of people does credit benefit?

Indigent students.

Will you give me an example of real estate?

Yes sir; this lead pencil.

Upon what theory do you term that real estate?

Upon the theory that it is stationery.

What are the constituents of quartz?

Pints.

If we had in the country a heap of silver dollars, what would we do?

Set up a dollar store.

Can you give the story of Io?

I had an idea, sir, that Io was changed into a heifer; but I heard Professor Black say Io-dide of potassium.

How do you define "patricide?"

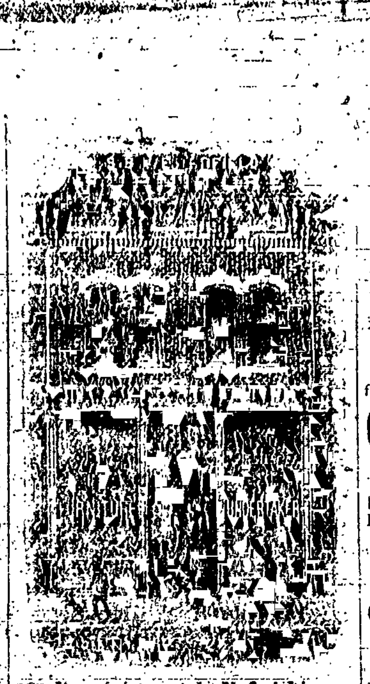

It is the crime of killing an Irishman.

What was the object of the Gunpowder Plot?

To blow up the king with gunpowder.

Give a good example of an elastic substance.

Conscience.

"Select List"

Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Select List of Local Newspapers.

Many persons suppose this list to be composed of CHEAP, low-priced newspapers. The fact is quite otherwise. The catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper. IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST. IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST. At the foot of the catalogue for each state the important towns which are not covered by the lists are enumerated. IT IS AN HONEST LIST.

An old advertiser writes: "I prefer the LOCAL LIST for the reason that, while but few persons in any particular town subscribe for a class medium (or large city weekly) nine out of ten subscribe for their local paper, and the tenth one borrows it from his neighbor."

An advertiser, who spends upwards of $5,000 a year, and who invested less than $150 of it in this list, writes: "Your Select Local List paid me better last year THAN ALL THE OTHER ADVERTISING I DID."

The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for single states ranges from $2 to $80. The price for one inch one month in the entire list is $650. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $3,083 16. The list includes 977 newspapers, of which 193 are issued DAILY and 784 WEEKLY. They are located in 807 different cities and towns, of which 28 are state capitals, 371 places of over 5,000 population, and 485 county seats.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO. conduct an agency for the reception of advertisements for American newspapers. The most complete establishment of the kind in the world.

Eight thousand newspapers are kept regularly on file, open to the inspection of customers.

Every advertisement is taken at the home price of the paper, without any additional charge or commission.

An advertiser in dealing with the agency, is saved trouble and correspondence, making one contract instead of a dozen, a hundred or a thousand.

A book of 120 pages, containing lists of best papers, largest circulations, religious, agricultural, class, political, daily and country papers, and all publications which are especially valuable to advertisers, with some information about prices, is sent to any address on receipt of ten cents.

Persons at a distance wishing to make contracts for advertising in any town, city, county, state or territory of the United States, or any portion of the Dominion of Canada, may send a concise statement of what they want, together with a copy of the ADVERTISEMENT they desire inserted, and will receive, by return mail, an estimate of the cost.

For such information and estimate there is no charge.

Orders are taken for a single paper as well as for a list; for a single dollar as readily as for a larger sum.

Geo. P. Rowell & Co. also publish the American Newspaper Directory (price $5), in which will be found a complete list of all American newspapers, and a Gazetteer of the towns in which they are issued.

Messrs. R. Mosley, George Thomas and W. J. Weed, started for Gothic City yesterday.

Mr. Frank Hoffman came down from Denver yesterday and will spend a short time with his friends in this city.

General Brown, of Denver, spent a few hours in the city yesterday and returned to the capital on the morning train.

Mr. Norman Buttery, of Montreal, who has been spending the past two months in this city, returned to Canada yesterday.

We had a pleasant call yesterday from Mr. C. H. Drake, of the firm of Greenlee & Co., proprietors of the Denver Marble Works. Mr. Drake has just completed the erection of a handsome stone at Evergreen Cemetery.

Mr. W. T. Eldridge, the accomplished and gentlemanly agent for Luce & Manning, Commission Wool Merchants, of Boston, called upon us last evening. Mr. Eldridge will remain in town some days looking after the interests of his firm.

Miss Aggie Yates, who was to have assumed the character of 'Hebe' during the rendition of Pinafore in this city, has been confined to her room at the National since the arrival of the company here. Her appearance at the benefit tendered her by the citizens of Denver on Thursday last was too much of an exertion on her part, as she is still suffering from the injuries sustained by being thrown from her horse some three weeks ago. It is to be regretted that she was unable to appear before a Colorado Springs' audience, as she is known to have a highly cultivated voice.

MINING NEWS

Notes of Progress and Discovery

Highland promises to become a very lively mining camp

The Silver artillery are doing lots of shooting in the Greenhorn range

The Alliance lode in the Oak Creek ga lena district runs 39 ounces of silver

The Terrill lo Mining company are erect ing a water jacket furnace on Oak Creek

About thirty-five overland prospectors have taken up their camp east of Dead Mule gulch and south of Galena

Parties have been looking up a sight for a smel er on Grape creek five miles below Dora The location is made but is kept quiet

Parties for the Gunnison by the Tin Cup pass are made up almost every day while small squads go over the Alpine and Cottonwood passes daily

Mine owners are so numerous in New York that some of the hotels there have been forced to put up placards upon which is written this significant sentence, 'no mines received in payment for board,'

The office of the Silver Wave, on Iron Hill is one of the brightest spots in the circ e of the mines—a beautiful site elegant ly furnished and occupied by Manager Lockwood and his charming wife it dis penses liberal and graceful hospitality

The William Wallace mine, Carbonate hill, has all of its hoisting machinery, in cluding engine boiler drum, wire rope etc, on the ground, but the owners have not as yet started to place it in position The shaft has not reached a depth of one hundred feet

The Tip Top and No 10 U S mines have made a plant of their hoisting machinery, repaired the break which occurred some time ago, and is now in excellent running order and hoisting the porphyry in lively style It has got, at an outside estimate, four months work to reach mineral

The Leadville Chronicle perpetrates the following 'It seems that G W Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, owned some of the Little Pittsburg stock, and when the bad but premature news of its temporary failure reached him, he felt bad enough almost to die, but proved that the ruling passion is strong even in death by tele phoning to the composing room the fol lowing touching lines

IN THE PLEASANT DE L T

Little Pittsburg thou hast fallen,
And our loss is sad and sore,
But the shaft we may yet deepen,
And at last strike rich pay ore.'

Mr. John Phillips, who is known to all the citizens of Buena Vista, as perfectly reliable in his statements, says about an extended tour in the Gunnison country which he undertook, that he went over the Alpine pass to Pitkin, thence to Gunnison City and Ruby Camp, and back by Gothic pass to Gothic, and out into Rock creek He reports the Alpine pass in very good order for footmen, but no pack animals can pass through. From Pitkin to Gunnison City the road is good for hauling, also from Gunnison to within nine miles of Ruby Camp, but the last nine miles are covered with an average of seven feet of snow, most of which has fallen within the last two weeks From Ruby he went to Cement creek. By go ing back the nine miles, he found a good road to Cement creek and only three feet of snow from the creek to Gothic. The road will be passable from Gunnison City to Gothic, for freight teams, in four or five days, The Alpine pass, he says, will not be in condition for loaded freight wagons for three weeks, although pack trains can be taken over sooner.

WHITE OAKS MINES

The White Oaks mines of New Mexico are just now attracting a great deal of at tention The Las Vegas Gazette gives the following directions concerning the routes to the mines "From Las Vegas to the White Oaks mines above Anton Chico 30 miles the next water from the Pecos is at Alkali or Pino Wells 70 miles from Pino Wells to Jerry Hocradle s, 4 miles, from Hocradle s to Pato Springs, 12 miles, and thence to White Oaks Springs, 12 miles

Six miles beyond Pecos crossing the roads fork The left road is the short cut and long drive without water to Alkali Wells direct The right hand road is longer with water at short intervals, going by Stinking Springs and Antelope to the Pino Wells From Jerry Hocradle's take the left hand road to go to Pato Springs The short cut route is preferred On this route there is a road which turns off to the left and goes by way of Camaliten, which is said to be better than by way of Pino Wells

Another route, given by a gentleman who has traveled over it, but not recently, is from Las Vegas to Puerfecito, 4 miles, Puerfecito to Apache Springs 18 miles thence to Pecos crossing below Anton Chico, 8 miles, thence to Puerto de Luna, 35 miles thence to the head of the Salado, 18 miles thence to the Yero 13 miles thence to a point on the Jicarilla moun tains, where there is water thence to Jica rilla Springs, 12 miles thence to the White Oaks.

UP AND DOWN THE STATE

Items of Interest Gathered from our Exchanges

The Saguache Chronicle says The Gunnison travel is slightly on the increase It is nothing to see 75 to 100 teams pass through in one day.

It is asserted that some of the large cat tle owners have their men on the range gathering and branding calves ahead of the regular round up If this is so it is very reprehensible

During the past year 46 030 acres of land have been taken under the pre-emp tion law, and 15 360 under the timber cult ure law within ten or twelve miles of Cozad, in the Platte valley.

An exchange says that the ground in Weld county is so dry that many farmers throughout the county are deciding not to plant any crops at all, thinking it will be better to let the ground be untilled than to waste seed and labor too

We find the following in the Saguache Chronicle "Mr Peabody, a young man from Colorado Springs was so unfortunate a few days since as to have one of his legs badly fractured by a heavy casting falling on it He was brought to town and is now doing well

The Leadville Times of May 12th says "The first robin piped his welcome to the spring this morning As a welcome, it came rather late, according to the calen dar, but not later than the tardy season itself Perhaps it may be better consider ed as a note of rejoicing and token of gen eral joy on the departure of lingering win ter.'

The Colorado Farmer says 'Many complaints reach us about the approach ing round-up Cattle are very weak and there is no green grass It is claimed that if they are now attempted many of the young calves and their mothers will per ish We hardly think they will be coun termanded, but great care should be taken in the drives We heard a number of the best posted cattle men assert if the work was now vigorously pushed the value of shipping cattle would be cut down this fall five dollars per head

The Leadville Democrat is responsible for the following "The news came to this office last evening from an apparently re liable source, that the Hon ex Lieutenant-Governor Williams, of Illinois, started from Leadville yesterday on a prospecting tour to the Roaring Fork district, He went with forty pounds of provisions on his back, a pick, a drill and a hatchet in his hand. Williams, fifteen years ago, was counted one of the wealthiest and most prosperous men in the great Chicago state. Many who read this to-day will doubtless send forth a desire that the ex governor may hit it rich ere the cold weather re turns"

The Saguache Chronicle says "A good Saguache county farm, well tilled is the most reliable bonanza Our farmers will without a doubt get well paid for the labor this season. Grain, potatoes and all kinds of country produce are selling for good prices. Oats are worth 3½ cents per pound, potatoes 3½ to 3¾, and not very plenty at that price. Butter 45 to 50 cents a pound, eggs 30 to 35 cents per dozen. Wheat is about 3 cents per pound. Baled hay is worth about $45 per ton. All kinds of veg tables bring a good price. Now, when 40 to 60 bushels of oats can be grown on one acre of ground, and from 30 to 50 of wheat, from 200 to 800 of potatoes, etc Hay takes but little attention until time to har vest it Then is not a good ranch a re liable bonanza?"

Speculator to old miner in Leadville, handing him a bag of samples 'Good quartz of carbonates?' The honest miner turns it over in his hand indifferently, takes out his knife and picks at it awhile, then asks "Got much of it?' 'Thousands of tons," answers the other eagerly. "How much do you suppose she'll run?' "Can't tell nothin' without an assay." "But you can guess, can't you, you can guess?' "Oh yes, anybody kin guess but a guess is liable to be extravagant—Now I should say but mind you I may go over the mark—turning the specimen over again and holding it up to the light, I should say that if you can save the gold in this and catch all the silver, and not waste the lead that it might run about well, about $2 to the county.

A "R YORK ORFUN" IN THE WEST.

He Declines to grow up with Detroit and Prefers to "Fite Injuns."

One of the little lambs picked up in the streets of New York by Whitelaw Reid and sent West to find a home was adopted by a Detroit family about two months ago, and the this is published Mr. Reid has received a big postal card announcing that his dear lamb has gone West to fight Indians and that he needn't mind sending on another to take his place. This New York lamb was thirteen years old. He said so at the depot on his arrival, and half an hour later he reiterated the statement at the house, and added: "And if you don't believe it then call me a liar! that's the sort of spring-gun I am, and don't you forget it!" They didn't forget it. He gave them no chance to. He ate with his fingers, wiped his mouth on his sleeve, and gave the family to understand before supper was over that he didn't come west to have his hair combed and his face washed as a regular business. On his first evening he slipped out, had three fights, and stole a dog, and when hunted up he was about to take his beer in a saloon. The family expected to wrestle with the boy for a while and they didn't sit down on him until it became a painful necessity. During his first week he stole $5 in money, a gold chain, a revolver and a pair of earrings, and he got drunk twice. When reasoned with and asked to do better he took a fresh chew of plug-tobacco and replied: "Oh! you Michigan folks are too soft! If a feller can't have a good time what's the use of being an orphan?" On Monday of the second week he sold the family dog to a stranger for a quarter, threw the saw and axe into the alley, and when locked up in a closet tore a Sunday coat to pieces. It was thought best to have a policeman talk to him, and one was called in. He put on his fiercest look and lectured the lamb for fifteen minutes, but as soon as he stopped for breath the young sinner replied: "Now see here, old buttons, you are wasting time! I know my little gait, I do, and if you think I've come to a village like this to be bluffed by anybody, you've missed your train!" He was taken to Sunday-school by the hand. He hadn't been there half an hour when he was taken out by the collar. He seemed anxious to punch the head of every good little boy within half a mile of him, and he told the teacher of his class that when she could stuff Moses in the bulrushes down him it would be after she had bleached out her freckles. They gave him a Sunday school book to fit his case, but he filled it to a crack in the sidewalk on his way home. When moral suasion had no effect on the wicked youth his guardian tried the rod. He was bigger than the boy, and he walloped him, but within three hours two of the nuts were taken off his buggy and thrown away. There was a second seance in the woodshed, and before dark a window glass worth $8 was broken. That orphan was faithfully and duly and persistently wrestled with. He was coaxed and flattered. He was licked and reasoned with. Ambition, gratitude, fear and avarice were alike appealed to in turn, but as he was the first day so he was the last. A few days ago he was told that he would be sent to the reform school at Lansing if there was any further trouble with him. That night he stole $5 of the cook, a butcher-knife from the pantry, a pie from the sideboard and departed, the house, leaving on his bed a note reading as follows: "This town are no place fur a N. York orfun. I'm goin' out on the planes to fite Injuns. It will be yuseless to foller me fur I can't be took Alive!"

Mr. Tilden's New Candidate.

Stranger things have happened in American politics than the nomination of William L. Scott by the Cincinnati convention next month. While comparatively unknown to the masses of Pennsylvania and the country at large, he is really to-day one of the most prominent men in the nation. Holding, as he does, directorship in railroad companies east and west, north and south, a heavy secret dealer in Wall street, a close personal friend of Samuel J. Tilden and an intimate associate in business affairs of many of the men who are termed kings in their line, he, did he desire it, might soon become a subject of discussion in every state and at every financial centre. He has aimed, however, to live without acquiring notoriety, either enviable or unenviable; has endeavored to keep out of newspapers, and has oftentimes refused to accept positions of public honor that his party friends have wished to thrust upon him. Only a few days since at Harrisburg he said, "These correspondents are making a politician of me when I have no real interest in politics." He was then at the front of the fight for Tilden, with whom he has been a close friend for many years years long before the Sage of Gramercy Park could have dreamed of presidential candidacies and electoral commissions. Their monetary interests ran in the same groove. They were side by side at many of the meetings of the great railroad corporations, in which they individually and sometimes jointly held stock, and the relations then formed ripened into such intimacy that Scott, speaking of the days of the count at Washington in '76-'77, said, "I believe I know as much about those events as any man living. I was with Mr. Tilden when he received dispatches from the democrats on the joint committee, before the agreement to the commission plan, and I saw him dictate the answers." He followed his friend's fortunes into politics four years ago and has ever since done all in his power to crown him with success. To William L. Scott, perhaps, more than any other man, does Mr. Tilden feel obligated, and it would not be strange if, setting Speaker Randall aside, he was disposed to name him as his legatee. Philadelphia Press.

Dr. Lorimer on Boston.

If we may judge the influence of this servant of God by the community in which he lived and labored, we will cease to question its Christly character. Boston, eminent in letters, is super-eminent in charities. That old city, radical in its ideas of right, uncompromising in its devotion to principle, stern and rugged, is perhaps beyond all others the one most easily moved by the appeals of suffering and sorrow. To the cry of distress its ear is never closed, to the plaint of indigence its hand is ever open, and whether the wail of anguish arise from a pever-stricken south, a fire scarred west, or a famine-smitten Ireland, it is as ready to help as the dews are to refresh the sun-scorched flowers or the rain to fertilize the drouth-encrusted earth. Religious, political and commercial rivalries and animosities melt like snow before the genial warmth of its philanthropy and no more bound its gracious ministry than glaciers, icebergs or grinding frozen seas restrain the rising sun. This spirit is common to all classes, all societies, churches, sects, and parties in Boston, and is conspicuously prominent in that religious body of which Dr. Channing was an honored member. And as long as it continues to number among its representatives such noble men as Edward Everett Hale, whose truly human soul, whose cosmopolitan tastes, sentiments and culture, and whose unfailing love impart a gentle cadence to the music of his speech, the Unitarians will continue to reign a queen among the sisterhood of charity. How much of this spirit is traceable to Dr. Channing, I leave others to determine, but that it is largely due to his influence a brief analysis of his philanthropy will demonstrate.

Put Nobody on Guard.

In the spring of 1865, when Sheridan's cavalry moved up the Shenandoah valley to have a last wrestle with Early's troopers, a halt was made by a portion of the Union force near Waynesboro'. Guards were thrown out to protect property, among others the house of a lone and aged widow received such protection. Two dismounted cavalrymen were stationed at the front door, and it was half an hour or so before any stir in and around the house gave evidence that it was inhabited. Then the widow limped to the door on a crutch and called one of the guards to her and asked:

"What are you doing here?"

"We are guards to protect you and your property," was the reply.

"Well, you needn't fool away any time here. Early he come and he took our hay. Sheridan come and he took our corn. Then Mosby he stole our hams and 'taters. Then Sheridan took our flour and cider. Then Early run off all our horses. All I had left this morning was an old sick mule and meal enough for one hoe cake. The mule he died two hours ago and I've just eaten the last of the cake, and if you can find anything worth guarding around here you can have it and tote it off."

"But some of the soldiers may disturb you."

"I guess not," she said, as she pointed to the spot where a cannon-ball had torn through the house. "The day that hole was shot through there I was rocking and singing the 'Pilgrim's Hope,' and I didn't miss a rock nor drop a note. I don't hardly think one brigade of horse-sojers can disturb me very much. You'll obleege me by joggin' along."

Some of the Portraits at Versailles.

And there is Marie Leczinska, painted half a dozen ways and ugly in every one of them. Poor queen! one wonders less on beholding her picture at the later conjugal infidelities of Louis XV. than at his long fidelity to so very homely a lady. Four of his daughters by Nattier, Adelaide, Sophie, Victoire and Louise—Loque, Chiffe and Graille and the royal nun this last the beauty of the family, with lovely pensive dark eyes and a beautifully formed head and throat. There is one portrait of her in pale brocade and silver lace with a point lace apron, wherein she is depicted as wearing a garland of flowers, and the face is exquisite. There are all sorts of portraits in the last rooms of the upper floor, arranged without much attempt at chronological order. George Washington figures there, and Henry Clay and John C. Calhoun and Daniel Webster and John Hancock (whose name is spelt without the final c) and Benjamin Franklin, whose likeness bears upon the frame the startling piece of information that he was "President de la Pennsylvanie." A rocky little state, that of ours, to have a president all alone to herself. There is a very interesting group of portraits of the family of George III., including the Farmer King himself and Queen Charlotte. Woe is me, what an ugly woman is the last most beautifully and tastefully dressed withal, in white lace embroidered with gold, but dress could do naught to diminish the width of her set, compressed mouth or the height of her cheek-bones. She looks every inch a queen, however, the veritable counterfeit presentment of the royal-minded lady who, when in her old age she was stopped in her sedan-chair by a mob, let down the glass and turned her stern, undaunted face upon the crowd. "I have been queen of England for forty years," quoth gallant old Charlotte, "and I was never insulted by Englishmen before." The rioters cheered and let the plucky old lady pass without further molestation. One beauty she possesses in no common degree, and it distinguishes all her portraits namely, finely formed throat, placed to perfection on a pair of shapely, sloping shoulders. Some of her daughters were pretty, as their pictures here declare, particularly the gentle Princess Sophie, whose death broke her old kind father's heart, and Elizabeth, who married the Landgravine of Hesse and at whose orders a most touching portrait was painted of George III. in his last days, which is still shown at Darmstadt a piteous likeness of a Lear in real life, blind, insane and old, with a long, white, flowing beard. Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Jade Burning Still.

It is said that Major Biddulph, stationed on the Cashmere boundary has prepared a report upon the customs, the language and the folk-lore of the singular communities among whom he has been residing for a long time. From Major Biddulph's peculiar advantages and opportunities may be expected, says the Calcutta Pioneer, a complete account of people who are a survival of the old Aryans from whom all civilized mankind of the present day is probably descended. Surgeon-Major Bellew, meanwhile, has been examining a few men from the cantons on the southwest of Dardistan, peopled by a similar race, who in one respect are still more interesting, for their country has never yet been visited by a civilized traveler. But in appearance and language they closely resemble the Dards, and unlike them have not embraced the creed of their Mahometan neighbors. The tongues spoken in all these hills are for the most part Aryan; not descended from Sanskrit, and indeed of earlier origin than that classical language. On the northern slopes of the mountains Parsee words prevail; in the southern cantons some of the words resemble Greek, some Latin, some those of modern Europe. They make (and freely consume) grape wine, something like a crude sherry supply. Those who are not Mussulmans believe in one God, but employ the intercession of minor powers, represented by images. They also occasionally cannibalize, eat men whom they have lost by death. They are usually monogamous, opposed to divorce and strict defenders of the chastity of their unmarried girls. These latter have blue, gray or hazel eyes; black hair is the exception among them; and when young they are of such remarkable comeliness as to be in great demand in the slave markets of adjacent countries. Authentic information concerning these interesting races cannot but be anxiously awaited by all who realize the nature of the questions involved.

Graveyard Literature.

The following is on a tombstone at Crayford, Kent:

Here lieth the body of
PETER SNELL,
(30 years clerk of this parish.)

He lived respected as a pious and mirthful man, and died on his way to church to assist at a wedding on the 31st day of March, 1814, Aged 70 years.

The inhabitants of Crayford have raised this stone to his cheerful memory and as a tribute to his long and useful services.

The life of this clerk was just 3 score and ten
Nearly half of which time he had sung out Amen
In his youth he had married like other young men
But his wife died one day so he chanted Amen
A second he took she departed—what then?
He married and buried a third with Amen.
Thus his joys and his sorrows were treble; but then
His voice was deep bass as he sung out Amen,
On the horn he could blow as well as most men
So his horn was exalted in blowing Amen.
But he lost all his wind after 3 score and ten
And here, with three wives, he waits till again
The trumpet shall rouse him to sing out Amen.
